

FIG. 164.—TITRATION APPARATUS.

On a shelf there is a large bottle for the silver solution, which can flow through a glass tube into the burette; the latter is provided with cocks for regulating the inflow and the outflow of the solution.

Fresh water has its greatest density at  $4^{\circ}$  C., which is taken as unity. Salt water becomes heavier the lower the temper-