

PLATE XXVI.

Corella japonica, Herdman.

- Fig. 1. Corella japonica, from the left side ; natural size.
- Fig. 2. The same, with the test removed, seen from the left side, showing the musculature of the mantle ; natural size.
- Fig. 3. The same, from the right side, showing the alimentary canal, &c. ; natural size.
- Fig. 4. Part of the branchial sac, seen from the interior ; magnified (Hartn., obj. 4).
- Fig. 5. A small portion of the branchial sac, seen from the outside ; much magnified (Hartn., obj. 5).
- Fig. 6. Part of the musculature of the mantle ; magnified (Hartn., obj. 4).
- Fig. 7. Part of the dorsal lamina showing the languets (l.) ; enlarged.
- Fig. 8. The condition of the internal longitudinal bars in some parts of the branchial sac ; seen from the inside ; magnified (Hartn., obj. 4).
- Fig. 9. The dorsal part of the anterior end of the branchial sac, showing the dorsal tubercle (d.t.) and the tentacles (tn.) ; magnified (Hartn., obj. 4).