

PLATE LXVI.

Saccopharynx ampullaceus (page 256).

Madeira. The specimen has swallowed a large fish, the outlines of which are visible through the integuments, and a portion of which can be seen in the distended gill-opening. v, v', represent a lateral and ventral view of two abdominal vertebræ, twice natural size.